I have two dates. var fromDate = new Date('10/1/2014'); var toDate = new Date('11/1/2014'); How can I get the number of milliseconds between these two dates? A: There is no built-in method for this in vanilla Javascript, but if you're willing to use a library like moment.js or angular-moment (which has a lot more features, but is also a bit bigger), you can do something like: var fromDate = moment("10/1/2014", "MM/DD/YYYY"); var toDate = moment("11/1/2014", "MM/DD/YYYY"); var numberOfMillisecondsBetween = fromDate.diff(toDate,'milliseconds'); Platelet catecholamine system and platelet-associated fibrinogen in hypertensive patients. The resting plasma catecholamine levels have been measured, platelet alpha 2-adrenoceptor density has been measured and plasma platelet-associated fibrinogen levels have been estimated in 13 normal subjects and 40 hypertensive patients with various degrees of hypotension and plasma levels of fibrinogen estimated. Fibrinogen levels were significantly increased in hypertensive patients compared to normotensives (3.6 +/- 0.2 vs. 3.0 +/- 0.2 g/l, p less than 0.01). In addition, they were significantly higher in hypertensive patients with a lower platelet alpha 2-adrenoceptor density and with severe hypotension (3.5 +/- 0.2 and 3.2 +/- 0.2 g/l respectively, p less than 0.05). Significant correlations between fibrinogen level and alpha 2-adrenoceptor density were also found.National Action National Action, also known as National
