Certain vehicles include one or more air recirculation systems to maintain a comfortable or well-ventilated condition within a passenger compartment of the vehicle. Exemplary air recirculation systems include an air cleaner having a filter for filtering air received via the air recirculation system. In certain air cleaner designs, a fan or blower assembly may be disposed within a housing to create an air flow. In some instances, a first stage of the air purification system may remove particulate matter, and in some instances, a second stage of the air purification system may remove chemical contaminants.#include using namespace std; class Solution { public: string buildHeadsAndTails(int n) { string s = to_string(n); int size = s.size(); int left = size/2 - 1; int right = size/2; bool heads = true; while (left!= right) { string head = s.substr(0, size - left); string tail = s.substr(size - left, size - left);
